

Research seminars autumn 2014

The research seminar series at the Institute for Futures Studies is highly interdisciplinary, reflecting the composition of the Institute. The presenters come from sociology, economics, political science, mathematics, and computer science. In this seminar series, theoretical, methodological and empirical work of importance for better understanding and forecasting social and economic change is presented.

Long-run income and wealth inequality, and the potential impacts on inheritance flows

19 September | 13.00–14.30

Jesper Roine, Stockholm Institute of Transition Economics, Stockholm School of Economics

Swedish Public Housing Companies in Transition

7 November | 13.00–14.30

Tapio Salonen, Faculty of Health and Society, Malmö University

The Interplay between Employment and Family Trajectories Across the Life Course

21 November | 13.00–14.30

Anette Eva Fasang, Humboldt-University Berlin & WZB Berlin Social Science Center

Host for the seminar series is Stefan Svallfors at the Institute for Futures Studies. The seminars are free of charge and take place at the Institute, Holländargatan 13 in Stockholm. Subway: Hötorget.

No registration is needed, but check the website for changes, www.iffs.se/en.

Welcome!

Also this autumn!

A Future of Expulsions with Saskia Sassen

25 November | 13.00–15.30

Spårvagnshallarna, Birger Jarlsgatan 57 A in Stockholm.

Saskia Sassen, Columbia University and comments by Lisa Pelling, Arena Idé and Roger Andersson, The Institute for Housing and Urban Research.

See www.iffs.se/en for more information.

